

ERROR REPORTS

We have a few errors to report to our users since last month. Also, because some users may not have corrected them, we are reproducing a near complete list of the perpetual contract errors that may have contaminated your data base last April. We notified our users to reaccess the April 19 and April 20 files, but if you did not get the message then we are showing the errors on the back of this Newsletter. All emphasized values (darker print) are candidates for error.

NEW QUICKTRIEVE PROGRESS

The new Quicktrieve in compiled form should be ready for distribution in early July.

Telenet Password Change

We regret the change in passwords caused by Telenet which occurred over a period of time beginning late last month. Telenet changed the passwords for every one of their customers, not just those who use the CSI service. Most of their customers were notified of the change in advance, but due to an administrative problem they failed to notify CSI and a few other of their customers. Therefore, we could not give you advance warning of the change. If you are a user who is still getting the "bad password" response then please call CSI so we can issue the new number to you.

Sincerely,

Robert C. Pelletier
