The promise of this new product is steadily becoming a reality. UNFAIR ADVANTAGE has evolved into an extremely viable tool to track and profit from market movement. Simulation trials without the benefit of parameter adjustment suggest high in-practice returns. Drawdown is manageable and trading frequency can vary from very active (one to three or more trades per day) to moderately inactive (one to three trades or so per month). No product is risk free, but because this system accepts as input the level of your risk capital reserves, you are given a better than average chance of outperforming a similarly situated trader who does not have this product.

UNFAIR ADVANTAGE is not a tool kit. Tool kits are popular but they are available to everyone at very affordable prices and they are so simple that nearly anyone can produce them. UNFAIR ADVANTAGE is a powerful system developed with high level original analysis and original ideas. There is nothing on the market that resembles this product, and we do not know of any software product that takes advantage of the market forces that contribute to its profitability.

We have produced two viable operating modes. One is called the Stop mode, the other is called the Stop-Limit mode. In the Stop mode, market entry is governed entirely through the encroachment of market reversal stops. In the Stop-Limit mode market reversals are based on alternating buy-limit and sell-limit orders. Should the market refuse to oscillate between the limit orders, a disclosed pair of outside stops will return the user temporarily to the Stop mode. In either viable mode the user will be in the market at all times. He will always be long or short.

Once the user of this product has sufficiently synthesized market behavior on the commodities, stocks and mutual funds he has decided to introduce as candidates, he can operate this product on a daily unattended basis with his PC clone. Through the use of other supporting software supplied to all users, UNFAIR ADVANTAGE will (1) collect today's market data, (2) branch to UNFAIR ADVANTAGE's logic, and (3) print out explicit market recommendations on up to 250 time series for tomorrow's market. All of this work is done without operator assistance. Your PC "awakens" at, say, 5:15 PM, captures today's necessary market data, calculates tomorrow's strategy, prints the details and goes back to "sleep" waiting for the system clock to tick past 5:15 PM of the next day where the data downloading process repeats. The output displays all candidate investment mediums and ranks them according to the ratio of achieved profit to maximum required investment.

The program is operated from a simple menu structure where control parameters and improvement parameters are introduced. The random gradient shell that holds the system handles all the study work automatically for a predetermined period measured in hours. The recommended solutions and tomorrow's business runs are accompanied with graphics that display, among other things, a bar chart of each time series analyzed, a dollar equity performance progression, a display of trade by trade profits and losses and full details on experienced market exposure and risk.

We hope to have this product ready for distribution in the fall. Price details are not yet available.
